The "inside" operations of the local colice Department in causing the arcest of Roland Galt, alias Professor Bair, alias A. J. Morris, allas E. J. tranley, were last night laid bare by aptain of Detectives McMahon after he man had been turned over to the lity Sergeant by Justice Crutchfield to be held pending his arraignment in he Hustings Court. Galt is under injectment for the theft of $1,000 from William E. Kahn, of South Richmond, 1908. He was arrested in Baltimore and brought back to this city by Desetive Sergeant Kellam, of the head-uarters force.

CAPTAIN MeMAHON TELLS
Captain McMahon in discussing the case last night, said: "I became captain of the headquarters force in the spring of 1910, and shortly afterward received a photograph from the officials of Terra Haute, Ind., of an alleged swindler who had been arrested in that city for the police of Youngstown, Ohio, who wanted him for grand larceny. I remembered the description which Kahn had given of the man, whom he said had swindled him, and as the picture tallied with this description. I had Kahn see the photograph. He recognized it at once.

"I then went before the Hustings Court and had Blair or Gault indicted for the Richmond offense. I at once telegraphed Terra Haute that we desired to get Morris, as he was known there, but received a reply saying that he had been turned over to the Youngstown officials. I wired them, asking that the man be held for Richmond, but learned that he had been granted ball at $1,000 and had skipped. That was the last heard of the man for several years.

"Then, from a friend in Baltimore, I identification. Sergeant Kellam telegraphed me and I had Kahn go to Baltimore. He picked Galt out of a number of prisoners without trouble.

OTHER CITIES NOTIFIED

THAT GALT IS UNDER ARREST
"Sergeant Kellam then learned of a concerted effort on the part of a number of men and women, who I believe are other members of the gang, to secure bail for Galt. The judge said when he ordered the man held for Richmond, that he would accept $4,000 hond. The Baltimore police learned that a man was on his way from Philindelphia with a gertified check for this amount and so informed the judge. He at once raised the amount of the bond to $10,000 and by this means was able to hold Galt until he could be officially turned over to Sergeant Kellam.

T consider the capture of the man one of the most important with which my department has had to deal in years, and have informed the departments of other cities where this man is wanted that he is under arrest here. I understand that Baltimore will probably bring charges of bigamy and conspiracy to defraud against the man and he may be returned there for trial after the local courts are through with him."

Galt was accompanied to Richmond by a man said to be his brother and who gave his name as I. W. Galt. He was also accompanied by a woman who is said to be his wire, and who appeared in Police Court with him yesterday. Galt is thirty-nine years old, well dressed, and of rather a pleasing personality.

Corporation Court Sustains Decision of Mayor of Danville,

Two cases involving violations of the State law, which were appealed from the Mayor's Court to the Corporation Court of the city of Danville, were decided yesterday in favor of the State, according to a report received from Inspector J. B. Clinedinst by Commissioner of Labor James B. Doherty yesterday afternoon.

The cases are those of the Penn Store and J. M. Edmunds & Co. The charge made by the inspector in the first case was violating the law which prohibits the working of employes more than ten hours a day. In the second case the charge was of violating the child labor law. NEALE GIVEN RESPITE

Attorney Claims Negro's Indictment

Was brawn lilegally.

Arthur Neale, the young negro sentenced to die to-morrow in the electric chair, has been given a new lease on life by Governor Stuart.

The Governor yesterday granted a respite until January 8 in the case of Neale on representations made by the negro's attorney, who has promised to produce in a few days papers bearing upon the case which, he believes, will show mitigating circumstances. Neale was convicted in King William County of an attempt at criminal assault and robbery by force. It was contended by his counsel that the indictment was irrogularly drawn, charging him with two crimes, and that the verdict of guilty was irregular, in that it did not specifically state that the man was guilty of one or both of the crimes alleged.

State Board of Education Extends Time to Bidders and Gives Ad-ditional Information.

Because of the multiplicity of rou ine business matters demanding immediate attention and a change necesmediate attention and a change necessary in the form of application to be sent to prospective bilders for school-book contracts with the State, the selection of textbooks for the schools was deferred by the State Board of Education yesterday.

On motion of Superintendent of Schools Harris Hart, of Roanoke, it was decided to take up the textbook matter at a meeting to be held January 21 the members of the board were present, and the business session.

The printed form adopted at the last meeting for the use of the bidders was amended so as to give additional information and thereby save time and trouble in answering questions from the book publishers. The time for closing the bids was given in the original application form as December 20. Because of the delay caused by the change, however, the time will be extended several days.

Rev. William J. Maybee appeared before the board and expressed his desire to have the work being done by his institution, the Virginia Children's Home Society, brought clearly before Involves Validity of Contract for 100,000 Bushels of Corn.

To determine the validity of an alleged contract for the purchase of 100,000 bushels of corn, which declined sharply in value before delivery, the appealed case of Vittorio Donati against the Cleveland Grain Company, was argued yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Donati a Richmond man, was the defendant in the United States District Court, where a judgment for $3,706 was returned against him.

Donati, who is distributor for the Stony Creek Distilling Company, Inc., it is alleged, entered into a contract with W. M. Lewis, a grain broker, for the purchase of 100 cars of corn, to be delivered in several installments. The total value of the corn at the date of the sale was $62,500, it being quoted at 62½ cents a bushel. Subsequently corn dropped to 56 cents a bushel. Donati it is alleged, cancelled the order, but the Cleveland Grain Company, for whom Lewis acted, made the shipments in accordance with the original agreement. The corn was sold at the Richmond Grain Exchange, bringing 59 cents a bushel.

Suit was instituted for the damages accruing from the alleged breach of contract. The jury found in favor of the plaintiff. An appeal was noted, exceptions being taken by the defendant to a number of letters introduced as evidence, and on other legal grounds.

Argument on the case began on Tuesday, but was continued until yesterday, but was continued until yesterday, when it was concluded and submitted to the court. John Lamb and Brockenbrough Lamb represented the Cleveland Grain Company.

HENRICO THIEF STEALS SHERIFF'S NEW OVERCOAT

Bold Burgiar Makes His Way to Office of Head of County Police

Force. When thieves begin robbing high police officials, it is time for we ordinary folk to take extra precautions. Some miscreant yesterday annexed the brand new $28-overcoat purchased only a week ago by no less a person than Sheriff L. H. Kemp, of Henrico County. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Sheriff Kemp is wroth, to put it mildly, over the theft of his winter comfort. The garment, which has been the envy of Henrico officialdom for the past week, was deliberately stolen yesterday morning from the private office of the sheriff while he was in another part of the building.

Grave suspicion points to a man released from the Henrico County Jall shortly before the discovery of the theft. County officials admit the man had a grievance, in fact he had asked for another coat when given his liberty. Jailer R, G. carnett had not considered his need worthy of consideration, and the man departed swearing that he would lay his case before Sheriff Kemp.

"Perhaps he thought the coat a visitation of Providence," said Jailer Garnett, as he attempted to cheer the owner of the departed ulster shortly after its loss was reported to him.

"Sometimes you police set those who

"Don't fall to get that coat," begged Sheriff Kemp. "You know the Henrico winters are cold, and I am a poor man —Eh, what!"
